SPECULATION UPON PLACE OF ATTACK

BULLETIN

LONDON, June 29—Two hundred thousand German troops have been massed in a vast motorboat armada preparatory to the invasion of England, according to Norwegian reports to the London Evening Standard tonight.

LONDON, June 29.—There were many "straws in the wind" today indicating that the Rome-Berlin Axis' actual blitzkrieg against England, their enemy No. 1, will begin within a few days—most probably on Monday.

Speculation today revolved upon two opinions—rather the attack would be directed against the British Isles themselves or first upon strongholds in the Mediterranean.

The concensus of informed opinion today indicated that authoritative quarters expect the attack directly against England.

Three New Naval Training Bases Planned By U. S.

Will Build Up Pilot Force Of 16,000 Navy Bureau Reveals Today

By ERIC FRIEDHEIM
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Plans for creation of three new naval training bases to build up a pilot force of 16,000 were revealed today by Rear Admiral J. H. Towers, chief of the navy's bureau of aeronautics.

The navy hopes to have 10,000 airplanes in its forces within the next two years and extensive facilities are necessary to train new pilots, Towers said.

To attain this objective, training centers will be located at Miami and Jacksonville, Fla., and Corpus Christi, Tex. The proposed Texass base will duplicate the existing naval training establishment at Pensacola, Fla., according to Towers. Enlargement of facilities at other naval reserve aviation bases also is contemplated.

Meanwhile a high navy official revealed that defense leaders are gratified over the fact that the United States fleet has been able to shroud its movements in complete mystery for nearly a week.

The exact position of the Pacific flotilla of more than 100 warships, in terms of latitude and longitude, is unknown even to President Roosevelt. Only a handful of persons, including the president and the fleet commanders, know the fleet's destination.

"This is the first time that the Americas navy has been able to move practically its entire force in complete secrecy," a naval spokesman said.

PROCLAMATION

In these trying days of crisis and tragedy, when millions are homeless through the horrors of war, the high privelege of being a citizen of the United States stands out as the most priceless possession in all the world.

Perhaps in past years we have accepted citizenship in a too matter of fact fashion. If we have, the events of the past year have rekindled in us all the flame of loyalty and appreciation.

Here in Lawrence county in the past twelve months, over 400 men and women have divested themselves of fealty to other nations and sovereigns and have declared their intention, under oath, of being true American citizens.

Others, young men and women, have reached the status of citizens by reason of their having reached their 21st birthday. It is most fitting and proper that in times like these we as American citizens should welcome newcomers into our national family in something more than a cursory fashion.

Monday night, July 1, the American Legion, Post Perry S. Gaston No. 343, aided by the Exchange Club will stage a "New Citizens Day" program in the auditorium of the Benjamin Franklin Junior high school at which time new citizens will be given a welcome in keeping with the citizenship they have acquired. It is a worth while endeavor, a piece of applied patriotism that merits the support of us all, now

Therefore:—As Mayor of the City of New Castle, I designate Monday, July 1, as New Citizens Day, and call upon the citizens of our city to join in this celebration to the end that these newcomers to the bonds of American citizenship may be given a demonstration of what citizenship means to those of us who were born here or have held the right for many years.

(Signed) Charles B. Mayne, Mayor.

PHILADELPHIA, June 29. — Daring President Roosevelt to run for a third term, Wendell Willkie, youthful Republican standard-bearer, today sought a week-end's rest before entering upon his campaign for the presidency of the United States.

Willkie faced the campaign with supreme confidence, urged congress to remain in session, denied being an "interventionist" and independently reserved the right to interpret the G. O. P. platform of "peace, preparedness and Americanism" for himself.

As for Roosevelt and the third term, he quietly observed:

Senator McNary Will Retain Post As Senate Leader

Vice Presidential Nominee To Await Election Results In November Before Changing

By ROBERT A. McGILL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 29—Charles L. McNary, Republican nominee for vice president, plans to retain his senate minority leadership until the results of the November elections are tabulated.

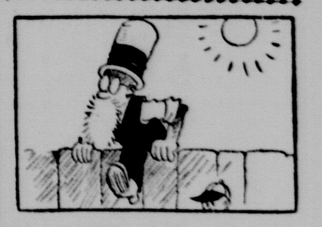

This was the program of the popular Oregonian today as rumors reached the capital that Republican bigwigs at their national convention wanted the important post turned over to Sen. Vandenberg of Michigan, if McNary, whose term expires in 1943, should resign from the senate before the elections are held.

McNary, whose nomination was seconded by Vandenberg, expressed a desire to retain his seat in the senate throughout the congressional session and the campaign as he made plans to meet—for the first time—his running mate, Wendell L. Willkie.

"My present plan is to continue my position in the senate," McNary said, adding that future plans may be determined at his meeting with Willkie and other party leaders.

G.O.P. Ponders Campaign Chairman

Hamilton May Remain On Job

National Committee To Select Man To Direct Party's Presidential Drive

MAY DELAY ACTION FOR SHORT PERIOD

By GRIFFING BANCROFT, Jr.
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA, June 29—Still embroiled in a dispute as to who should be its chairman, Republican National committee went into a post-convention session today to organize and lay the groundwork for the campaign which members hope will result in sending Wendell Willkie to the White House.

Three courses are open to the committee in regard to election of a chairman— the man who must handle a major role in the coming vote drive:

Three Courses

1—John D. M. Hamilton ,national chairman for the last four years, may be re-elected—a course favored by a majority of the committee.

2—Some one else may replace him—and many names have been suggested.

3—Action may be postponed, and this is believed to be the course favored by Willkie, the presidential nominee who traditionally names the chairman.

The meeting was called after a high board of G. O. P. strategy met with Willkie to thrash out the matter. Included in this closed door gathering was Alf Landon, 1936 nominee, Governor Baldwin and national committeeman Samuel F Pryor, Jr., of Connecticut, Governor Stassen of Minnesota, Rep. Martin, G. O. P. floor leader in the house, and Rep. Halleck of Indiana, the man who placed Willkie's name in nomination at the convention.

"Fighting Campaign"

Conferees refused to discuss the meeting except to say that the compaign—which Willkie has announced will be "fighting and aggressive" was gone over in general terms.

It was learned that Stassen, formerly mentioned as a possible successor to Hamilton should Willkie choose to replace him, was definitely out of the picture. The governor is a candidate for re-election. Earlier, some members of the national committee urged the re-election of Hamilton on the grounds that Willkie has no political organization and should simply take over the one maintained by the G. O. P. Willkie however, was believed to have told them that he would rather delay such a decision until he has a chance to rest and see how the campaign shapes up.

WILLKIE TO CONFER WITH McNARY UPON PLAN FOR CAMPAIGN

ing his own policies for the 1940 race.

It is certain that Willkie will discuss with McNary the question of electing a new national chairman to replace John D. M. Hamilton, named four years ago by Governor Alf M. Landon, the 1936 nominee.

The new GOP nominee is exhibiting caution in tackling campaign problems. That is why he has postponed any decision on the chairmanship for the present. It also explains why he announced he would speak later on the foreign plank of the GOP platform, but he did take occasion to say:

"Not Interventionist"

"There is no basis for any claim that I am an interventionist."

The kings and potentates—leaders and delegates to the 22nd Republican national convention—meanwhile disappeared from the scene. A great majority went home convinced they had nominated a winning ticket and convinced too that the general public had forced the nomination of Willkie, with McNary as his running-mate.

Correspondents, who are veterans at political conventions, seldom have seen anything like the popular demand expressed here for Willkie. Each delegation literally was showered with telegrams and letters, demanding Willkie's nomination. The appeals, about evenly divided between persons who could afford telegrams and those who used penny postcards came in such quantities that delegation leaders were physically unable to open all, let alone read them.

Time and again, a GOP leader entered his hotel room to find the floor littered inches deep with Willkie messages. It grew so common that the leader merely kicked the pile to one side to get access to the room and went on about his business without even examining the messages.

"We Want Willkie"

And the same thing literally happened in convention hall. Thousands upon thousands of visitors attended each session and declared their choice with a football chant of "we want Willkie."

Choice of McNary as his runningmate was a little different. If the public had been given the same time to express its favor, the result could have been the same because NcNary is one of the Republican party's most popular figures. Instead, he was chosen because midwestern and far western senators and representatives bluntly demanded the place for him—a demand echoed very loudly from the east.

There were three major reasons given for making McNary the vice presidential nominee. One was that many congressmen, up for re-election in the fall, declared: "We must have McNary on the ticket to help us in our districts."

The other two reasons were to offset Willkie. First, McNary is a great friend of the farmers. He authored the McNary-Haugen bill for farm relief through the equalization fee—a plan vetoed by two Republican presidents, never tried but still advocated by large groups of farmers and business men too. Willkie has no such agricultural background.

Second, McNary is a leader in the movement for public development of water power at government-owned dams. He "fathered" the giant Bonneville dam project in Washington and Oregon. Willkie has been on the other side of that fence as president of the Commonwealth and Southern Electric Holding Corporation.

McNary also offsets Willkie on this issue.

So the Republicans face the presidential wars with courage and optimism—their standard-bearer most optimistic of all, calling:

"I want to meet the champ."

The ministry of popular culture in Rome confirmed Marshal Balbo's death, but there were no official details.

BLITZKRIEG ON ENGLAND MAY DEVELOP SOON

today, in spite of the categorical denials from official British sources. Official Britain vehemently declared again today that there can be no peace at this time, and it was reiterated that the sources of these peace rumors appears to be suspect —in fact, it was officially stated that the source of these reports actually was the enemy camp.

Many of the peace rumors revolve upon the person of former Prime minister Neville Chamberlain, although he has now categorically identified himself with the aims of Premier Winston Churchill and has promised 100 per cent cooperation with Britain's pursuit of the war effort. Nevertheless, many find it impossible to forget Chamberlain's past, and some are openly insistent that he and other of his "appeasement regime" resign from their high posts in the current British war government.

Many high circles are of the opinion that only by resignation of Chamberlain and some of his colleagues can Britain convince the nations abroad—the United States in particular—that appeasement of the Axis partners is entirely out of the British reckoning. However, removal of the powerful Chamberlain group, in view of the recent assertions of cabinet collaboration, is considered most unlikely.

While there is no official information as to where the Italo-German Axis may be expected to strike next, various reports continue to pour in from widely separated quarters indicating that the blitzkrieg probably will be directed directly against England rather than against Mediterranean or colonial strongholds.

Aim At England

There has been nothing official to indicate any unusual Axis concentrations anywhere, still Swedish newspaper dispatches continued to report unusual activity of Nazi troops in Norway, interpreted as preparations for an attack upon Britain across the North Sea and via the Atlantic.

Swiss reports said Italian circles believe the war will enter its decisive stage Monday, and that Fascist forces stand ready for the order to join the attack against Britain.

Whatever the direction of attack, however, British plans have been completed to cope with any strategy decided upon by Rome and Berlin.

While the exact nature of these preparations cannot be divulged because of military secrecy, it can be revealed, upon highest authority, that England's preparations are "complete to the last detail," and cover any possible medium of attack which may be contemplated by Germany and Italy.

Britain is confident that no matter what form the assault takes, the Axis partners may be assured of "a hot reception," and official quarters expressed the utmost confidence that the British army, navy and air force are competent to deal effectively with any major operations the enemy may decide to launch.

LONDON, June 29.—Destruction of two more Italian submarines by the East Indies squadron of the British fleet was announced by the admiralty today.

REPORT CLASH OCCURS ALONG PRUTH RIVER

a definite tightening of the Rumanian decision not to allow Russia to exceed her demands.

Already, the Russian troops have been reported advancing beyond the limits agreed upon following the Soviet ultimatum to Rumania.

As King Carol's general mobilization order—originally interpreted as a move to forestall Bulgarian or Hungarian demands on Rumanian territory by force—got underway, bitter clashes broke out in Czernowitz district.

Street Fighting

When the Red flag was hoisted in the occupied province, the Ukranian and Rumania provinces engaged in bitter street fighting.

All through Bessarabia and Bukovina, communists fought in the streets with civilian enemies of Red Russia.

Bulgaria and Hungary both are known to have more than 70,000 men each under arms, and Rumania reportedly had a first-line defense of over 2,000,000 at the time of Russia's lightning grab of Bessarabia and northern Bukovina.

However, latest information from throughout Rumania indicated that King Carol's general mobilization order lacks its intended strength. Many corps are still unmobilized.

(Unconfirmed dispatches to London newspapers said Rumanian troops had fired on Russian detachments at the Soviet-Rumanian frontier.)

Rumanian troops yielded to Russian soldiers in Bessarabia and northern Bukovina, but held themselves in position behind strong fortifications against any more of Hungary or Bulgaria to duplicate the Soviet grab of Rumanian territory.

Hungary Stands Firm

Bulgaria likewise decreed partial mobilization, but Hungary stood firm, taking no special measures in the conviction that Germany and Italy will support her insistence for return of her former territory (Transylvania) as the situation develops.

The meeting of the Rumanian Chamber of Deputies, scheduled for today to discuss the crisis, was postponed until Monday, and the opinion of informed quarters was that for the present Germany and Italy would not interfere in the developments in the Balkans.

Both Bulgaria and Sofia have reinforced their border guards, yet Bulgaria and Hungary insisted no military action was contemplated.

(Reuters News Agency reported in London: "The Hungarian government has decided, in view of the still unsettled position of Rumania, to intensify the guard along the whole Rumanian frontier and move frontier troops to more advanced positions.")

There were reports that Rumania expected to receive Bulgarian and Hungarian demands within 24 hours, and a correspondent of a London newspaper stated that Russia assertedly had notified Hungary that the U.S.S.R. plans to take Hungary's Ukranian territory under protection.

Further negotiations between Russia and Rumania are scheduled to take place today in Odessa, but meanwhile Rumanian evacuation of the ceded portions of Bessarabia and northern Bukovina continued. Refugees created a major problem in Bucharest and other large cities, especially as there were many Germans among the thousands who fled the Russian incursion.

Conference Today

Today's conference at Odessa will concern itself principally with evacuation problems as related to Rumanian territory, and establishment of a new international line of demarcation which will be fixed unilateral by the Russians.

Meanwhile, the Rumanian government sought time to deal with the Russian demands, but immediate occupation was demanded by the Soviets as Russian war planes filled the sky and Soviet tanks, mechanized divisions and infantry occupied the territory—and beyond —the limitations set by Moscow.

Germany and Italy, both appealed to by King Coral for diplomatic if not military aid, apparently were satisfied to allow Russia a free hand. Both were asserted to have informed Carol that at the moment, neither the Reich nor Italy could interfere.

Meanwhile, the Russians quickly occupied Cernauti, Tighina, Chianau and Cetatea-Aalba. The only clashes which were officially reported occurred between Russian troops and Rumanian soldiers who had not received their orders to withdraw without offering resistance.

Moscow appointed Generals Koslow and Boldin to meet with the Rumanians today at Odessa.

At the moment Bucharest was reported in a virtual state of siege, with most of the principal buildings protected by sandbags and the main thoroughfare patrolled by troops.

U. S. POSITION IS NOT CHANGED

Japan's "Monroe Doctrine" Declaration Not Altering American Attitude

By JOSEPH H. BAIRD
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 29.—The United States, it was said officially today, still stands upon its expressed policy of consenting to no changes in the "status quo" in the far east except as a result of peaceful negotiation.

This was the official reaction to the declaration of Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita in Tokyo proclaiming what he called a "Monroe Doctrine for Asia". The implications of such a doctrine, as viewed here, are to give Japan a position of special political and economic privilege in the entire Orient, particularly the colonies of defeated European states.

The state department declined direct comment on Arita's speech, explaining that no official copy or account of it had yet been received in Washington through diplomatic channels. A spokesman said that Secretary Cordell Hull would withhold comment until he had received an official version of the pronouncement and had had time to study it carefully.

Meanwhile, on the basis of press reports, officials asserted that Arita's statements could make no difference in the official position that the United States has consistently assumed—that of safeguarding its treaty rights in the far east.

HITLER VISITS NAPOLEON'S TOMB

A DRAMATIC picture is presented by the news that Adolf Hitler visited Paris, passed by stiffly saluting Nazi sentries at the Invalides and, alone, stood for some time at the tomb of Napoleon.

It was a place for Der Fuehrer to do some heavy thinking; a quiet place where the bones of a long dead Conqueror might have served to remind this one that victories sometimes melt away and that conquerors kill off young men too fast.

A contemporary news dispatch from Berlin comments guardedly on the sober quiet of the people there at the start of the ten days of rejoicing proclaimed by Hitler over the fall of France. The item hinted that these German men and women back home were waiting for word of the fate of their own sons in the bloody battles of recent weeks before they could find it in their hearts to rejoice unrestrainedly about anything.

Nobody could do more than imagine what Hitler's thoughts were as he stood alone in the Invalides. He's that kind of a man. But he might have been wondering, and not without profit, how long the people in Berlin and all through the Reich would continue to cheer him on when so many thousands of families get the curt Nazi message: "Your son will not return. Heil Hitler!"

DISPLAY THE FLAG

"Upon seeing our nation's flag, we see more than the flag. We see the nation itself, the government, the ideals, the history, the great leaders, the future dreams. We see a symbol of a long struggle to achieve democracy."

This is a quotation from a school bulletin and it is worth committing to memory. It will serve as an inspiration to a rededication to the principles symbolized by the flag. But it should be a dispassionate, a reasoning and not a highly emotional rededication.

Among these principles is that of tolerance. It should be singled out for special consideration in these days of rather feverish spirit, when there is a dangerous disposition in the land to yield to suspicions and hatreds. The flag is a reminder of the duties, obligations and privileges of American citizenship. It is well to have it before our eyes.

SMALL TOWNS SHOW GROWTH

While 1940 census figures have appeared only in driblets so far, enough has been published to reveal the fact that our larger centers of population has virtually ceased growing, and that what increase we show as a nation has been made largely in the smaller places.

This development has been anticipated for several years. It was recognized some time ago that our larger cities were becoming too big, too unwieldly, too unsatisfactory for both living conditions and national development.

Industry began heading the procession from the large cities back to the smaller centers of population several years ago. We know this industrial migration was in progress, but it will take the present census to show us the extent of this factory and population shift.

All this does not mean that the day of the big city has passed. We shall continue to have certain large centers of population because we need them. But if the 1940 census indicates any one thing, it is the renascence of small-town America. Industry is finding these places more acceptable; people have and always will find them more livable. Size doesn't mean so much to us any more. We are becoming more interested in the pleasant, homely, companionable American way of living.

DON'T CONFUSE ISSUES

There is a small group of defeatists in this country who seem to have become persuaded to the view that opposition to totalitarianism requires totalitarian methods. They observe the success of the dictator-ridden nations in creating gigantic military machines in a brief period of time, and reason that a form of dictatorship must be exerted here if the United States is to swiftly build its armed defense to the necessary level.

Anyone who believes that has forgotten or never knew the history of this country. We have met great crises before—and we have met them as a free people. When emergency comes, all Americans—worker, capitalist, executive, farmer—forget their differences, and join their resources in the interest of the common good. And no dictator is needed

That is happening in the present emergency. Big business men and little business men have pledged themselves to do all in their power to assure the swift completion of the defense program. The great basic industries of this country—the railroads, the utilities, the steel companies, the machine makers—are prepared to do whatever is necessary to meet the exigencies of the future. They are prepared to co-operate with government to the limit, to the end that democracy may be perpetuated through democratic methods.

America has never had a dictator—and America doesn't need one now. Americans aren't robots, who must be treated like the cogs of a machine. Americans are individuals, determined to do the finest job they ever did in the interest of their country. Those who talk of the need for dictatorial powers to save democracy, of ruthless government domination of business and industry, would destroy our traditional way of life which has proved its strength in times of greatest danger. They would destroy the very thing they profess a desire to save, namely freedom and opportunity.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

MOTHERS GIVEN MORE AID

We in America are making progress in the care of expectant mothers. In many communities there are free public clinics and dispensaries which make available to all expectant mothers of these communities the best of care.

Some Pioneers

The city of Cleveland, for example, has pioneered in excellent services to expectant mothers. The Child Health Association there, under the able direction of Dr. Richard A. Bolt, in cooperation with the local Medical Association, has for a number of years carried on a program in prenatal care which has become the pattern for many other cities.

This Child Health Association conducts classes in prenatal care for expectant mothers. At the present time, this program, with 118 classes per month, reaches about 5,000 expectant mothers a year, which is about one-third of all mothers confined in Cleveland. Nine lectures per series are given in these classes. Free lesson outlines are distributed to each class member and bound copies are being sold at 25 cents the copy. Recently, classes for expectant fathers also have been established.

Lower Mortality Rate

Statistics show a decidedly lower mortality not only among the mothers but also among the infants born following this prenatal care. They also show that each added 500 women reached by the instruction program resulted in the saving of at least another life. The Cleveland maternal mortaltiy rate has been reduced from 7.2 per thousand live births in 1931 to 3.1 in 1938, and this reduction has undoubtedly been effected, in a great measure, by the educational porgram of the Child Health Association.

For the entire nation, the rate for the first half of 1939 is 4 deaths of mothers for every 1000 live babies born, a drop of 23 per cent since 1937. And, whereas, 15 years ago, 74 out of every 1000 babies born alive were doomed to die before a year of age, the rate has fallen to 50. Too bad they have such a warring world to come to!

"The Expectant Parent" is a free government pamphlet to be had by writing to the Children's Bureau, Department of Labor, Washington, D. C. I shall be glad to send any one who will write me at 235 East 45th street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it, a list of books and pamphlets for expectant parents.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Do you believe in whipping children over five or six?

A. No, I don't, except in very rare instances.

Q. "I have a baby. Also an invalid mother who expects me to listen to the details of how she is feeling, and between desperation over the baby and a nervousness at trying to listen to her and do up the many jobs, I could often scream, if I'd let myself."

A. Often an invalid mother or father is harder to manage than a child. Principles of good management are similar. Make clear to the mother that after you have done the best you can for her you don't have time to listen to the details of how she feels. Then walk away and go about your business with good conscience.

Q. Would you let children run and romp indoors?

A. No; unless there were a play room for such purpose. Let the child learn very early that games of chase must be played out of doors—for safety and citizenship.

BROKEN NOSE

Since the baby came they say:
"Sonny, run outside to play!
Tell the other girls and boys
That they mustn't make a noise.
Tip-toe out; don't bang the door,
Baby's got to sleep till four."

Since the baby came to stay
I'm just something in the way;
Something to be shushed, for fear
Noise will waken baby dear.
On the bed I mustn't climb
When it's baby's bottle time.

Every time that I come near
"Don't's" the only word I hear.
If upon the cot I lean,
"Don't! they shout: "Your hands aren't clean!"
And if that's not bad enough,
Then they tell me I'm too rough.

My Pa says I mustn't mind,
Folks don't mean to be unkind,
But the women, one and all,
Make a fuss of babies small,
And when all is said and done,
I'm the family's oldest son.

LIFE'S LITTLE AGONIES

HOW ABOUT IT?

There are many people in this country who make foolish and dangerous jokes and who violate the law and then deny everything. They make if different and expensive to enforce the law. I sometimes think this notion that every man is innocent until he is proved guilty needs revising some way. There are many people who are guilty about all the time and have no intention of doing right for right's sake. Yet it is often hard to convict them for lack of legal evidence, whereas we all know them guilty. These people are a hazard and detriment to all honest people. Yet we seldom have the grit to get after these guilty people and help prosecute them. They know we don't want to turn them in and that we will try to avoid testifying and jury duty. The crooks know we are afraid, that we are selfish and poor citizens ourselves. If they knew that we would get right after them every time we see them doing shady things, they would quit. They couldn't go on. The conclusion is that if we do not do this police duty fearlessly at all times, then we are weak governors, and weak governors are always finally put out and stronger governors take their place."

Good Taste

Reg. U. S. Patent Office

By Francine Markel

A girl up the street from me has been weeping on my shoulder this morning because she says her husband is a "softie" who lets the other boys at the office use his charge account and gnaw at is pay-envelope nearly every week. These holes in the family income have left them minus the month's rent money and dear Hubby lacks the courage to demand what is due him. He says he can't afford to become unpopular with his office colleagues.

Once let rats smell out a good thing, they will swarm in from all directions. It is so also with human rodents. They readily size up the type of young husband who readily lends his car, his evening clothes, his bottled goods, his money... When the day of reckoning comes, he invariably loses both his belongings and his friends, the borrowers.

He who retains both knows a chapter in his little book that tells him how to be humorously firm in his refusal to become the easy mark of the office or the neighborhood.

Readers' Questions Answered

Question: In order to be cultured, do you think one should know the French and Belgian pronounciations of the many cities now figuring in the war news?—Polly.

Answer: No. Otherwise to be consistent you must also pronounce the French capital "Paree". If you pronounce it as most Americans always do you may just as properly pronounce the other foreign names phonetically. Nevertheless, it is smart to give them their foreign pronunciation provided you are definitely sure of them.

Question: Should the abbreviation R. S. V. P. be written in capital letters or small letters?—Ted.

Answer: It is smarter to write it thus: R. s. v. p. (the initial "R" capitalized but the "s. v. p." in lower case. It is a French Phrase literally translated "Repondez s'il vous plait," which in English means, "Answer, if you please." However, when it is put at the bottom of an invitation, you must answer whether it pleases you or not.

Scrutinize Incoming Aliens
Attorney General Kept Busy
Newcomers Harder To Exclude

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Attorney General Robert Jackson is no more than getting barely started yet on his new duty of supervising the admission of aliens into the United States. It's a justice departmental sideline, however, which promises to keep him pretty busy before long.

The job was more or less a matter of routine while the labor department handled it, as it did until very recently, dating from away back into the distant past.

Those were the days when we really had immigrants. That is to say, they didn't come here from overseas with any idea of producing an influence of one sort or another in the United States. They came as workers. Few of them remained among us as aliens; generally speaking, they joined us as naturalized Americans as soon as they could.

Thoroughly Americanized

Letting them in and assimilating them very properly was a task for the labor department to handle, because labor then was what they were. There was a long time when we needed them if they were the right kind, as most of them were. They needed a little sorting out, perhaps, and there's no doubt that some of it was rather carelessly done, permitting a few undesirables to trickle into our midst. Still, in the main, these folks constituted an excellent class, which wasn't long in becoming thoroughly Americanized.

By the time the World war rolled around we were beginning to think we had nearly enough of this increasing element of new citizenship. It wasn't that we found any fault with the quality of our would-be newcomers, but American labor was starting to complain that fresh arrivals were developing into an excess of competition. Not only our original American workers said so. Comparatively recent foreigners who already had been assimilated, said so also.

This led to immigration restrictions. They weren't particularly designed to keep out undesirables. Applicants for admission weren't ordinarily rated as personally undesirable "per se.", The argument was that it was undesirable for us to let in many more prospective workers at a juncture when we already had a pretty large contingent of unemployed already on hand.

An Economic Problem

It wasn't a political problem. It was economic.

At that point our alien exclusion laws were somewhat on a par with our protective tariff legislation.

Our protective tariff regulations weren't intended to imply that foreign-made goods aren't all right on their merits. Instead, their purport is that we can do our own manufacturing here at home, and that our manufacturers are entitled to

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

"Rock-a-bye baby, why do you fret
Are you aware of the national debt?
Father's gone 'round the corner to vote
Millions in bonds for his snookums to tote.
Are you suspicious? Sleep while you can;
You can squirm later, dear, when you're a man."

The Congress of the United States has voted another four and one-half billion dollars for the President to spend on Preparedness. It has also raised the limit of the national debt several billion dollars, and the Secretary of the Treasury says that the chances are that we will spend in 1941 about five billion dollars more than we take in. Why?

It is admitted that it will cost this nation a great deal more today for that which ought to have been commenced several years ago in the matter of preparedness. But in all of this extra spending, there is not one word said about curtailing the ruinous expenditures for the many Government Bureaus. There is no suggestion that Relief monies be curtailed; no suggestion that W. P. A. workers might be enrolled in the Army and the United States. There is no suggestion that work in the many factories that will have to get very busy making this and that bit of war material should be speeded by proper changes in the Wagner Act. In fact, there is no suggetsion that all the spending of the last seven years should be lessened. There is only more, more, more, spending.

Th Consolidated Aircraft Corporation has large contracts with the Allies for the making of warplanes. In order to execute these contracts more rapidly, they are building a great addition to their plant, but the war could be over and another war commenced before this addition is completed, for the reason that the workmen work but five days a week and only eight hours a day. Naturally, this work should be speeded up. The men should be working at least six days a week and twenty four hours a day in shifts, under electric lights as well as under the light of the sun. No doubt the same conditions apply to shipyards and munition plants. At the present rate, we would not be prepared for war with Herr Hitler and Senor Mussolini in short of five or six years.

This situation means not only a waste of money, but a waste of time and the national debt grows greater every day.

It Is Up To The Candidate

PHILADELPHIA, June 29.

THE REAL feature of the Republican platform is its beautiful elasticity. It can be stretched—particularly the foreign policy plank—to cover almost every development. In effect, it leaves the party's foreign policy to be interpreted by the party's Presidential candidate and formulated by events.

UNDER existing conditions, that seems the intelligent thing to have done. It also seems to have been inescapable. Certainly it was the course advised by Mr. Herbert Hoover, who in his speech Tuesday night in so many words asserted that if Mr. Roosevelt, who presumably will be the Democratic nominee wants to know the position of the Republican party on international affairs he can obtain the information from the party's Presidential candidate. That was a remarkable statement which at the time seemed to escape general attention.

IT IS, of course, unprecedented for a party to leave such wide discretion on so important a matter to the nominee even before his name is known. But when the facts are considered there seems nothing else it really could have done. Obviously it is impossible to foresee for three weeks, much less five months, the shape of the international picture. Clearly the convention had to be general in its declaration. The vital thing was to avoid rigidity. That was the real aim of the platform drafters, and the best evidence of their success is that neither the extreme isolationists nor the strong interventionists are pleased with the plank.

NATURALLY, the great authorities on international affairs with whom Philadelphia, at the moment is cluttered find the plank terrible. They moan and groan over what it should have said but did not and what it should not have said but did. It is called—and justly—shifty, shaky, wishy washy. Nevertheless, there was not one of the Presidential aspirants, from Senator Vandenberg, who is regarded as the most pronounced isolationist, to Mr. Willkie, whose views on foreign policy are practically identical with those of Mr. Henry Stimson, who cannot stand on this plank.

THERE IS ROOM for all of them there, which from one point of view may seem funny but actually was the only practical thing that could be done. In effect, the Republicans make a more or less meaningless declaration which they leave to the candidate to implement and interpret as events seem to warrant. The journalistic reaction to the platform treatment of domestic issues was generally favorable. Independent Democratic papers such as the New York Times commended it as a whole. Its sins of omission and commission exist but they are neither glaring nor sinister. True, in spots the platform is vague, evasive and equivocal, but there are other spots which are clear, concrete and even courageous—notably the party commitment to amend the National Labor Relations Board Act.

HOWEVER, the truth about the platform is that in a month—or six weeks at the most—it will be almost completely forgotten. It will figure hardly at all in the general campaign. The candidate will make his own platform. This convention has left him a far freer hand to do this than conventions usually do. It is not, of course, a great platform, but there have been many worse.

AND WHAT DO platforms amount to, anyway? The best, clearest, simplest, soundest platform ever adopted by a political party was the Democratic platform at Chicago in 1932 upon which Mr. Roosevelt was first nominated and elected. To every word of that platform he solemnly subscribed. He pledged himself up to the hilt to carry it out in every particular. Yet, six months after he took office he heaved the whole document "out the window," repudiated it in word, letter and spirit with a completeness never seen before. After that repudiation, upon which he seemed politically to thrive instead of being destroyed, the surprising thing is that anyone again should take a platform seriously. Recollection of that performance makes it seem singularly futile either to commend or condemn this platform or the one which will be adopted three weeks later when the Democrats meet—presumably—to nominate Mr. Roosevelt for the third term.

Japan Announces Establishment Of Monroe Doctrine

(International News Service)

TOKYO, June 29.—Japan today announced establishment of a "Monroe Doctrine" in East Asia and warned other nations—the United States in particular—to keep their hands off the Japanese sphere of influence.

Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita, in a radio broadcast, said that Japan would actively prevent any foreign intervention in the destinies of Asia, and declared that "the common interest of Japan, Germany and Italy has brought an end to the status quo" in the Far East.

Arita declared Japan's foreign policy is based upon avoidance of involvement in the European war and upon an effort to prevent hostilities from spreading to East Asia, but he said Japan expects the other nations of the world to avoid attempting to exert "undesirable influences", especially in relation to East Asia and the South Seas.

What's What At A Glance

practically, a monopoly of our domestic markets, without overseas stuff horning in, in competition with them.

Similarly our unionized workers maintained that they were entitled to protection against the admission of still more foreign labor in competition with the former, thus depressing Yankee wage schedules.

There have been economists who have insisted that we have overdone our protective policy, as to foreign-made goods. There likewise have been critics who have insisted that we have overdone immigration restrictions.

Through our customs service, the treasury department has attended and still attends to our tariff collections. Which is o. k. It's an economic task and the treasury's function is economic.

The Labor Angle

Until very lately the labor department has had the management of immigration restrictions. That was o. k., too, while the immigration angle of the situation remained purely economic—exclusively a labor issue.

But it's that no longer. There's no labor influx at present. However, there are plenty of propagandists and other Nazi, Fascist and Communistic "fixers" doing their utmost to find footholds in the United States. They're a darned sight harder to exclude than any poor, ordinary would-be working immigrant ever was. These boys come with first-rate-looking official credentials, as vice consuls, diplomatic attaches and other functionaries, who are mighty difficult to turn down unceremoniously. The labor department hasn't the machinery to do it, or even to identify the suspects effectively.

That's why President Roosevelt switched the immigration restriction enforcement function from the comparatively helpless labor department to Attorney General Jackson's outfit, with J. Edgar Hoover's undercover bureau, and all the rest of the machinery necessary to do a classy piece of international detective work.

Retail Sales Show Gain In New Castle

By ARTHUR C. WIMER
(Special Washington Correspondent, New Castle News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 29—The gain in retail sales by independent stores this year has been much greater in New Castle than Pennsylvania as a whole, according to a Census Bureau study.

In May, compared with May 1939, such sales increased 14.7 per cent in New Castle as against only 9.3 per cent in the state at large. The May gain over April amounted to 24.5 per cent in New Castle but only 11.5 per cent in the state. The increase during the first five months of this year totaled 10.1 per cent in New Castle as compared with only 7.4 per cent in the state as a whole.

The gains in this type of trade have been substantially more emphatic in New Castle than any other city of the 25,000 to 49,999 population group.

Now, from less than a quarter of a bulb is growing a beautiful pure white lily, trimmed with uniform red stripes on the back. Mrs. Bowman extended an invitation to garden lovers to visit her garden and see this flower.

A Circus Feat Seldom Seen

DARING SOMERSAULTING EQUESTRIANS WITH THE LOYAL-REPENSKY TROUPE

The Loyal-Repenski Troupe of bareback riders are descendants of circus riders who for generations appeared in Europe, traveling with quaint wagon shows. A back somersault from the back of one galloping horse to the back of another going the same rate of speed is but one of the many thrills executed by these famous brothers and sisters. Twisting somersaults, pyramid building, leaping high into the air and landing safely on a horse's back, are a few more nerve-tingling stunts done by these intrepid youngsters.

Over 250 feature acts with The Cole Bros. Circus, which this year is combined with the entire aggregation of Ken Maynard's Wild West, riders, ropers, Indians, cowboys and cowgirls. Fifty clowns, headed by Otto Griebling, Jimmy DeCobb and Shorty Huffman; fifty dancing horses ridden by fifty beautiful girls. The Skating Rockets from Oslo, Norway, five herds of performing elephants, Joan Spalding, world's greatest lady gymnast, and the Escalante Troupe of aerialists are among the many standout acts. An innovation with the circus this season will be a beautiful processional pageant entitled "La Habana" in which hundreds of dancing girls, singers, massed bands under the direction of Victor Robbins, special scenery and lighting effects will be presented.

Circus day in New Castle this year will be Tuesday, July 9, when the Cole Bros. Circus and Ken Maynard's Wild West will be here at the Cedar street show grounds.

Dr. Dafoe's Column On The Quintuplets And The Care Of Your Children

(Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

SUMMER CARE

Let me repeat, because it is so important: don't wean the baby in hot weather. If you do, then you are asking for trouble. No baby should be weaned during July or August.

As a rule babies should be fed at the breast nine months. But if this period ends in the month of July, the mother is wise to do the weaning June. If the period ends in August, then she should continue to nurse him until September.

This is a very important point because a breast-fed baby often has trouble in becoming adapted to other feedings. If he has the added complication of hot weather to contend with, the trouble is almost inevitable.

As I said in another column this week, diarrheas that affect babies in hot weather fall into two definite classes. One is mild, caused by overfeeding; the other is caused by infection and is a real threat to any baby's life.

Even the milder form of diarrhea can be mighty serious because, if it is allowed to continue unchecked, or untreated for a while, the baby's system is robbed of its water. Of course, if feedings are cut down immediately, and the amount of water given is increased, then the baby should respond quickly to treatment. But if you wait for a while after the symptoms appear, mistaking the trouble as something that will clear up itself, the diarrhea may become serious.

This brings up a point I failed to mention in other colums this week on summer care of baby. The same scrupulous attention given to keeping the food supply safe and uncontaminated, should be devoted likewise to keeping the surroundings germ proof. And since baby is surrounded day and night by a diaper, it is certainly correct to list these squares as "surroundings", the medical cleanliness of which is of the highest importance.

Just to wash diapers is not enough for safety. They should be laundered in super-careful fashion, and they should be sterilized.

Diapers should be washed every day, and never should be just dried and then used a second time without washing. Upon removal, they should be placed in a covered pail filled with cold water until they are washed. This pail itself should be washed and sterilized thoroughly regularly.

The badly soiled diapers should be kept apart from the others until they have been cleaned as thoroughly as possible by holding them under a toilet flush or some similar means, or washed separately.

In the laundering process, very hot water and plenty of mild white soap should be used, and they should be rinsed four or five times, for baby's tender skin can be irritated by any particle of soap left adhering to the diaper. After the rinsing, the diapers should be boiled, and this precaution should never be overlooked. And diapers should be dried outdoors in the wind and sunshine, whenever possible, instead of indoors.

Babies should be changed in daytime whenever they soil themselves, and at night when fed. The diaper problem can be simplified quickly by starting the child in good habits of toilet hygiene early. This training can start at a few months. A little time and patience with the young baby's toilet habits will save mothers hours of trouble.

Camp East Brook Chatter

With a bright, warm sun shining the entire day, East Brook campers heralded every phase of camp life. The swimming pool was one of the greater attractions. Even the counsellors had an opportunity to plunge.

The main attraction was a fire drill. At seven o'clock in the evening the gong was bonged. Enthusiastic participation ensued, although each cabin was orderly in leaving the dormitory.

Miss Anne began to teach clay molding; Miss Cornell's plans for a religious ballet are well developed. In Miss Kay's Nature Nook the most recent addition is a moth and a tiny cluster of its eggs.

Before breakfast there is a worship service which introduces the girls to each new day with a spirit of love and goodwill toward each other. Under the able supervision of Miss Louise and Miss Ruth, a general theme was organized. "The Empty Cup"—a poem explaining that every morning we are given an empty cup to fill during the day—is the nucleus. At sunset we must present our cup to God. "What does your cup hold today?" is the challenge of the morning services.

In the late afternoon Miss Marie escorted a group on a "song hike", arriving back in camp just in time to join the dinner line.

With an evening program an amateur show with much talent was displayed. Skits, stunts, songs and dances were plentiful. Miss Bess is responsible for the interesting and varied activities each evening.

The "pajama parade", at which time the girls troop into the dining hall for crackers and milk, now is even more popular, because of the "goodnight talks" under Miss Dorothy Stewart's able and diplomatic direction. More and more the policy of self-government and the opportunity for the girls to think out problems for themselves has been followed. If the day is a little damp and cloudy, they hold discussion groups to settle the problem. All decisions pertaining to their life at camp they determine themselves.

Continuous Rains Hamper Farmers

(Special To The News)

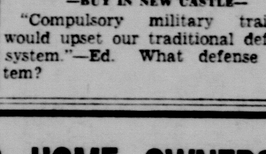

MERCER, June 29—After wrestling all spring with the problem of getting their crops in, the farmers of the county are now facing the problem of harvesting their timothy and clover. Clover, one of the heaviest yields ever known in Mercer county, is reported as being greatly damaged by the continuous rains. It is said to be rotting on the ground. Timothy is also unusually heavy and ready for the mowers. Wheat and rye are said to be going down and suffering from the rains.

FORMER GOVERNOR FISHER IS BURIED AT INDIANA, PA.

INDIANA, Pa., June 29.—This quiet county seat today had paid its last tribute to the most distinguished native son of its recent history, former Gov. John S. Fisher.

The one-time school teacher who rose to the governorship as a Republican, serving from 1927 to 1931, was buried here after services attended by numerous past and present state officials and scores of simple country folk who knew him as a neighbor.

Fisher died at his Pittsburgh apartment home this week after an extended illness. He was 73.

Willkie Plans Quiet Week-End

Will Leave Philadelphia Tonight—Visits Newspaper Offices

NOTIFICATION MAY BE AT ELWOOD, IND.

By WALTER KIERNAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA, June 29.—In preparation for the aggressive campaign which he plans to wage against the new deal, Wendell L. Willkie, presidential nominee of the Republican party, wound up his conferences with party leaders today and sat back for a quiet week-end.

His immediate plans were to spend tonight on Publisher Roy Howard's yacht, arriving in New York sometime Sunday. On Monday he will resign as president of Commonwealth and Southern Corporation. The next few days he will spend in cleaning up his affairs with the utility corporation and then head into the country for a two or three week rest.

He looks tired and he is tired after almost eight days of confinement in hotel rooms, conferences with his convention supporters, breakfast sessions with delegates and a continuing round of meetings with casual visitors in his rooms.

As yet he has not decided when he will receive official notification of his nomination but he is almost sold on the idea of having the ceremony staged on the steps of the high school in Elwood, Indiana.

He has two reasons for that. He was raised in Elwood and met his wife there and—"I was thrown out of that high school two or three times."

After leaving the convention hall and the tremendous ovation in his honor late yesterday, Willkie made a surprise visit to the Philadelphia newspapers, thanking editors and their staffs for the courtesies during the convention and waving a friendly hand to composing room workers and pressmen who crowded out to have a look at the Republican candidate.

State Leaders To Launch Drive To Elect Willkie

State Chairman Torrance To Map Plans For State-Wide Campaign

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—Uniting behind the standard of presidential nominee Wendell L. Willkie, Pennsylvania's Republican leaders today swung into an intensive campaign to carry the state for all GOP candidates in the fall elections.

State chairman James F. Torrance returned to Harrisburg from this convention city to plan the state-wide drive. Instructions to Republican chairmen in Pennsylvania's 67 counties will be issued shortly from state committee headquarters, it was understood.

Full endorsement of Willkie for president and Sen. Charles L. McNary for vice president came automatically from the state committee which had voted at a reorganization meeting in Philadelphia May 18 to support whatever Republican standard bearer the convention chose.

State leaders are banking on the popular appeal of the utilities magnate to help complete the Republican comeback which swept Gov. Arthur H. James into office two years ago. They saw in Willkie's nomination an omen of success for the candidacy of Jay Cooke, Philadelphia GOP chairman, to succeed U. S. Sen. Joseph F. Guffey, Democratic incumbent.

Two former U. S. Senators, both of whom loyally supported Governor James on early ballots in the national convention, praised Willkie as a man who can bring "dynamic leadership and revive the backbone" of the national Republican party. They were former senators George Wharton Pepper, of Philadelphia, and David A. Reed, of Pittsburgh.

Two Freighters Sunk By Torpedoes

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, June 29—Two freight vessels were reported torpedoed today 300 miles off the coast of France in a message picked up by the Mackay radio from the American export liner Excalibur.

The message from the Excalabur identified the freighters as the S. S. Edgehill and the S. S. Empire Toucan and read:

"S. S. information from GYW:

"S. S. Edgehill, 49.27 N. 15.25 W torpedoed 10:25 p. m., June 28. S. S. Empire Toucan, 49.20 N. 13.52 W torpoed 3:15 a. m. June 29."

The S S. Empire Toucan is a British ship of 5,000 tons and sailed from Galveston, Texas recently for an undisclosed European port.

Lloyd's ship registry lists the S. S. Edgehill as a 6.828 ton vessel operated by the Lykes Brothers-Ripley steamship company of New Orleans. (Spokesmen for the maritime commission in Washington said it was probable that the ship had been sold and transferred to foreign registry since the outbreak of the war.)

Local Officials Called Into Conference With F. B. I. On Procedure In Locality

Mayor Charles B. Mayne, Chief of Police W. G. McMullen, Chief of Detectives R. A. Criswell and Sheriff M. M. Ingham conferred with Federal Bureau of Investigation officials in Pittsburgh, on Friday.

Upon their return here they debunked propaganda spread here that persons allegedly affiliated with reportedly un-American organizations had been quizzed or arrested by FBI agents.

The purpose of the conference, which was also attended by police officials from other western Pennsylvania cities and boroughs was to arrange a uniform method of operation against alleged subversive elements.

The FBI said that all reports received by police officials of such activities should be immediately communicated to them and the FBI or G-men as they are more familiarly known, would make investigations.

Chief McMullen said that persons who have information concerning alleged espionage or sabotage should lose no time in imparting the information to police officials here.

The chief pointed out that such information as well as the name of the person providing such would be held both by police and the FBI in strict confidence.

Local police officers will not make any investigations. However, if anyone is taken into custody the local authorities will be advised, the FBI asserted.

New Compressor Station Planned On McKim Farm

Five Acres Of Farm Near Ellwood City Purchased For New Station

BEAVER FALLS, June 29.—Plans are being rushed to completion for location of a compressor station and dehydration plant on the McKim farm in Franklin township, for 16 miles of new gas line to be laid by the Manufacturers Light & Heat company.

The new line will extend from Monaca to the New Castle-Portersville line, and the start of work awaits only PUC approval of the project. Depletion of a gas field in Tioga and Potter counties and adjoining New York areas made the provision of a new supply necessary, it was stated.

The new line will be 16 inches in diameter. The pressure will be increased at the station and the gas compressed into a ten-inch line. Five acres of the McKim farm have been purchased by the local utility.

The station will also provide a gas supply for cottages located in the North Sewickley district and the Ellwood City Country club.

"Dave" Smukler Becomes Plain Buck Private In U. S. Army — Going To Hawaii

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, June 29.—Gridiron Star Abel "Dave" Smukler neatly booted his chances at fame and fortune in professional ranks into the air today as he took up duties as plain buck private in the United States army.

Smukler, former fullback at Temple university, later with the Philadelphia Eagles and scheduled to play this year with the Detroit Lions, enlisted a few days ago. He now is at Fort Slocum awaiting shipment to Hawaii where he will see service in the coast artillery.

His shift from gridiron to army ranks is being protested by "Potsy" Clark, manager of the Detroit club. Fort Slocum officers revealed today. Potsy, it was said, complained that he bought Smukler's contract for a "fat sum" and wants him out of the army.

Convention Throngs On Way Homeward

By BART RICHARDS
(News Staff Correspondent)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 29.—The captains and the kings depart but the tumult and the shouting hasn't died as yet. Won't die for some little time for Philadelphia seems to believe that it nominated Wendell Willkie for president alone and unaided.

At 3 o'clock Friday morning there were 15,000 people dancing in the Benjamin Franklin parkway and Friday night were having a little more of the same. Taxi drivers, cops on the corner, elevator men, bankers and business men are all taking personal credit for the nomination and perhaps they are all right.

Late Friday afternoon the convention got a chance to see Wendell Willkie in person and hear him deliver his first speech as the Republican nominee. The speech wasn't short, just a lot of hammer blows at the New Deal that had the crowd repeating its ovation of Friday morning when he was nominated.

Nomination Amazing

The nomination of Wendell Willkie was an amazing thing. It violated every rule of old time politics, it tossed away traditions that had the moss of years on them, it was simply a movement upon the part of common folks who wanted what they wanted and they got what they wanted.

The nomination of Charles L. McNary for vice president was a matter of short moment in the convention. Dewey Short, congressman from Missouri was nominated but it was just a graceful gesture upon the part of his friends. From the beginning there was no doubt about McNary's nomination and the team of Willkie and McNary looks to be a team of heavyweights who will swap blow for blow with the New Deal.

The convention finally adjourned about 5:45 EDST with the usual flock of resolutions and pretty speeches. The permanent chairman squatty Joe Martin from Massachusetts added to his stature with his handling of the convention and parenthetically Martin may be the man who saved Willkie's nomination.

After the fourth ballot on Thursday night the politicians wanted a recess. The gallery was vociferous in its demand that the balloting go on. Had a recess been taken trades might have been accomplished that might have robbed Willkie of his prize.

Explaining why he didn't entertain a motion to recess Martin said, "It looked to me as if the folks wanted the balloting to go on and I wouldn't order a recess."

By 7 o'clock Friday night the exodus of delegates, leaders, alternates, visitors and just folks started. Crowds thronged the exits of the hotels for a last glimpse of the visiting host and by noon Saturday the town will be practically deserted except for the committeemen who have to meet and the visitors who still want to see Independence Hall.

Some Highlights

State Committeeman Ivor V. Davis and Major Guy J. Wadlinger were among the last of the New Castle visitors to get in. They arrived late Thursday afternoon and while they got a room in a hotel they didn't get a ticket to the convention.

W. Keith McAfee of New Castle was a visitor at the convention but was not around the convention hall too much. Judge Thomas W. Dickey and Harold Heck left the convention hall just before Senator McNary was nominated for vice president.

And now the show is over. Philadelphia did itself proud in the way it handled the convention, everybody is climbing on the Willkie bandwagon and Jack McIlwraith of New Castle is probably saying "I told you so."

Resignation Of Chamberlain Is Letter Demand

(International News Service)

LONDON, June 29.—The Official Press Association today circulated a letter, signed Strabolgi, demanding the resignations of Neville Chamberlain and Viscount Halifax from the British war cabinet and Sir Samuel Hoare as ambassador to Madrid.

Presumably written by Baron Strabolgi, internationally known British author and politician, the letter brought a new climax to the rising tide against "the disciples of appeasement" at Munich—a campaign openly prompted by fear they might seek appeasement with Germany once more.

"The greatest service they (Chamberlain, Halifax and Hoare) could do their country would be to resign," the letter stated.

Yankees Facing Tough Old Road

Champs Eight And Half Games Back Of Pace-Setting Cleveland Indians

By ED KIELY
(International News Service Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, June 29.—With the season's half-way mark—the Fourth of July—just a few days off, the once great New York Yankees today were faced with the tough task of playing almost .700 ball to capture their fifth consecutive American League pennant.

Recently returned from a disastrous western junket, on which they lost nine out of eleven games and did not win a series, the McCarthymen now are lodged in fourth place, eight and one-half games behind the pace-setting Cleveland Indians.

Yesterday the world's champions opened a brief four-game stay on their home lot by defeating the Philadelphia Athletics, 4 to 1, in a game which was interrupted for 43 minutes in the ninth because of a drenching downpour. After the rain, the A's loaded the bases but Marius Russo pitched himself out of trouble by forcing Catcher Frank Hayes to hit into a double-play to end the game.

Red Sox Lose

The collapsing Boston Red Sox slipped another notch in the pennant fight by dropping a 4 to 3 ten inning decision to the Washington Senators. Charley Gelbert provided the heroics for the Senators, driving in three tallies, including the winning marker. Detroit at St. Louis, the only other scheduled game in the junior circuit, was rained out.

In the National League, the Brooklyn Dodgers won a 2 to 1 victory over the Boston Bees in an abbreviated contest which was halted at the end of the eighth inning because of rain.

Cards Defeat Pirates

Five runs in the ninth inning gave the St. Louis Cardinals an 8 to 2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates in a night game. Bill McGee allowed the Pirates only seven hits, one of them a home run by Fletcher. J. Martin scored a homer for the Cards.

The Chicago Cubs beat the Cincinnati Reds 3 to 2 in another night game behind the pitching of Jake Mooty. A crowd of 26,834 say young Mooty outpitch veteran Paul Derringer. It was Mooty's fifth consecutive victory.

Cincinnati Reds Send Johnny Vander Meer To Indianapolis Subject To Recall

Vander Meer was optioned to Indianapolis of the American Association on a 24-hour recall basis. Club officials said the move was taken because of Vander Meer's desire to pitch more regularly.

"I realize the only way I can help myself and the club," said Johnny, "is to get better control. The only way is to work hard. As soon as I get four or five good games under my belt, I expect to be back."

Boys Defy Weather As Diamond School Begins Here Friday

Despite a heavy downpour, the Atlantic Refining Company 10-week free baseball school got off to a flying start, Friday morning, in The Arena.

Chief instructors, Walter Rabbit Maranville, one of baseball's immortals, and Al Kruez, ex-football star and currently baseball coach at the University of Pennsylvania, were astounded at the interest shown by Lawrence County youths.

Originally, the school was slated to start on the George Washington junior high field at 9:30 o'clock. By the time Maranville and Kruez arrived, the north hill field resembled a pond. Because more than 200 boys defied Jupiter Pluvius, Maranville refused to disappoint the enthusiastic gallery.

Arrangements were immediately made to use The Arena for the first lesson. There, the boys watched the ex-major league star and Kruez explain and demonstrate a few of the fundamentals of the game. The boys saw the proper pitching stance, the right way to field a ball, how to play first, second, shortstop, and third. The duties of a catcher and outfielders were outlined by the tutors.

Because the weather refused to turn off the spigots, Maranville decided to call off the afternoon program.

The school will be conducted every Friday morning at 9:30 o'clock on the George Washington junior high field for the next nine weeks. Most of the morning hours will be devoted to lecturing and demonstrating various plays. During the afternoon, sides will be selected and games will be played.

Maranville explained that the most talented boys will be rewarded. As the school progresses, 20 boys will be picked to represent New Castle. The group will be given new uniforms and will compete in the Atlantic Refining Company tourney. The winner from this district will play in the finals in Philadelphia.

Maranville urges all young men to take advantage of this opportunity. The school is open to anyone interested in baseball. There is no charge whatsoever. Everything is provided save gloves for pitchers, infielders and outfielders.

Sports World Ramblings

Rabbit Maranville...After spending a few hours with Rabbit Maranville, it's simple to understand why he ranks among the immortals of baseball. Here to open a 10-week free baseball school, together with Al Kruez, University of Pennsylvania baseball coach, the great little shortstop and second sacker won his way into the hearts of several hundred pop-eyed youngsters yesterday.

After explaining some of the fundamentals of baseball to the boys, Maranville meandered around the downtown section. His presence brought about a shower of diamond questions. Maranville was most accommodating. Loaded with interesting reminiscences gleaned during a 23-year stretch in the big show, the 5 foot 5 inch star shot out one baseball yarn after another.

He was telling about the Miracle Braves of 1914 who arose from the cellar in July to win both the league banner and world series championship. "We had a patched up lineup. In fact we signed contracts in June to make sure we would have jobs in 1915. We never dreamed of pulling the impossible," he said in an interesting manner.

He told how the Braves licked Eddie Plank, Joe Bush, Chief Bender and Bob Shawkey, Philadelphia Athletic aces. "The Athletics' infield of Stuffy McInnis, Eddie Collins, Jack Barry and Frank Baker, known as the $100,000 infield, couldn't hit the side of a barn with a snow shovel. We really showed them a waiting committee at second," Maranville said.

Blessed with wit and the ability to narrate stories, Maranville has an elephant's memory. He went back to the days of Honus Wagner, Johnny Evers, George Stallings and some of the other greats. He credited Evers with saving the National league by refusing to hop into the Federal league. Wagner also did his part by sticking when there was wholesale jumping in the American circuit.

Maranville believes "Babe" Ruth was the greatest drawing card in the game and the one who did more for baseball. In his book, Herb Pennock, the old reliable Yankee pitcher, gets top billing in the casting department. One of the closest and dearest friends is Connie Mack, the present Athletic foreman. "Connie is always figuring out ways of helping the youth. He introduced this free baseball school idea three years ago," Maranville pointed out.

He was telling us how he was nicknamed Rabbit. "A little girl named Harrington did it in New Bedford, Mass., when I played in the New England league. I knew the Harringtons so well that I would even dine with the family. When I reached the door one night, the youngest of six daughters barked out, 'Hey Rabbit!' She said I looked and acted like a rabbit. Ever since, the name has stuck," he said.

From his conversation, Rabbit leads one to believe that he favors the game that was played in yesteryears. He jokes about the ways pitchers are pampered: about the sore arms and the number of days a pitcher needs to rest his arm. "We never heard of four and five days rest. If a pitcher got two days rest, he was lucky," Maranville declared.

He doesn't think Dizzy Dean will ever come back to regain his old form. Regarding "bean balls" Maranville sincerely believes that they are unintentional. He defended Bob Bowman, who recently felled the great "Ducky" Medwick. Lastly, Rabbit thinks that there is only one sport for young and old—baseball!

Girl Scouts Plan Lake Erie Trip

Group Of 25 From City To Spend July 2 At Pennsylvania's Presque Isle

A committee of five Girl Scouts, representative of the city's 25 first class scouts, met at the office recently with Mrs. Thomas Clark and Miss Helen MacLean, director, to plan for the annual all-day outing. This event has become a tradition of New Castle scouting, and the girls are happy to have Mrs. Clark with them again.

Mrs. Clark has been actively interested in scouting for a long time, and has helped most of the girls with some of the requirements for their first class award, notably in the nature field.

This year the girls have elected to drive to Lake Erie, and spend the day at Presque Isle. In addition to swimming, plans also include lunch cooked over an open fire and exploratory trops along the Isle. The date is Tuesday, July 2.

Chicago Recalls Visit Of Balbo

Was Center Of Celebration In Illinois City In 1933—Flew Over Atlantic

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, June 29.—The death of Marshall Italo Balbo in an aerial battle, reported today, recalled his capture of the heart and imagination of Chicago in 1933.

Balbo led an epic trans-Atlantic mass flight of 24 hydro airplanes to Chicago's Century of Progress, their arrival July 16, 1933 was the signal for a huge celebration. For three days Balbo was the center of attraction and activity in Chicago.

Garbed in white uniform, Balbo made a striking appearance and was hailed by thousands during the brief stay. He struck such a responsive chord in the hearts of Chicagoans that he was signally honored by naming a downtown street Balbo Drive in his memory.

The fliers followed the great circle route, developing the science of aeronautics and navigation and strengthening the friendship between Italy and the United States.

Nearly 100,000 persons thronged Soldiers Field for the official reception of Balbo and his flight. More than a million persons had craned their necks to watch the planes drop to the surface of Lake Michigan in Chicago's front yard.

Although Balbo accomplished the purpose of his "good will" flight to America, he was assigned to what was termed in Europe as "political banishment" when he was sent to Libya as governor.

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, June 29.—The federal government closes its books today on its most expensive fiscal year since the 1918-19 war period, having poured out over $9,500,000,000 in cash since last July 1.

As the 1940 fiscal year reached its final hours, the treasury deficit zoomed near the $3,700,000,000 mark while the public debt hovered close to a new record peak of $43,000,000,000.

Government expenditures for the past 12 months were approximately $300,000,000 larger than during the same period a year ago with the army and navy receiving nearly $2,000,000,000 of the amount expended.

Revenues this year amounted to nearly $5,900,000,000, an increase of $300,000,000 over last year but still some $800,000,000 below the government's revenue record established in 1920.

The amount of money spent during the 1940 fiscal year was about half that expended between the summers of 1918 and 1919.

Agriculture received about $1,500,000,000 from the treasury this year while the WPA was given $1,500,000,000. Interest on the public debt consumed another $1,000,000,000.

Gold stocks on hand totalled $19,871,000,000, nearly 70 per cent of the world's visible supply, while the monetary value of silver was $3,900,000,000.

As the treasury moves into the 1941 fiscal year Monday, cash on hand totals $1,244,000,000.

Formal Notification Of G. O. P. Candidate Is Expected In Home Town

(International News Service)

ELWOOD, Ind., June 29.—Civic leaders of Elwood today cautioned this farming community's 10,685 citizens to "conserve their strength" for the day when "Wen" comes home to formally accept the Republican nomination for president of the United States.

The warning was issued by Harry Neanover, former publisher of the Elwood Call-Leader who yesterday dug up the four-inch type he hadn't used since the signing of the Armistice back in 1918 and issued an extra-special edition, and Art Harrell, Madison county GOP leader.

Their plea followed a torch-light parade and celebration yesterday, in which every able-bodied man, woman and child participated, despite the fact Elwood and Madison county formally vote 75 percent Democratic.

Harrell went so far as to predict without qualification that "Wen" will carry Elwood and Madison county in November, no matter who his Democratic opponent is.

His prediction was backed up by young George Sturbois, who married Julia Willkie, who is the daughter of Frank Willkie, who is the uncle of Wendell Lewis Willkie, who is the Republican candidate for president and is better known hereabouts as "Wen." Sturbois said:

"Shucks, the folks down here will pay no attention to party lines. Take my father-in-law, Frank Willkie. Once he ran for mayor of Elwood on the Democratic ticket. He's Democratic all right. But can you see him voting for anybody but Wen?"

It was hoped Willkie would return during the annual tomato festival, which ends July 26. But whatever the day, he was assured a gala welcome.

Norwegian Fishing Boat Reaches U. S. On Blind Voyage

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, June 29.—Shrugging off the plaudits of fellow seamen, Capt. Bernt Hauge, 40, who sailed a 68-foot two masted Norwegian fishing trawler to this country without charts, today was interested only in "finding a job".

The heroic master of the Trawler Bergholm, docked his vessel here after having staged what amounted to a lone fight, backed only by the seven members of his crew, against the Nazi invaders of Norway.

Captain Hauge, engaged in mine sweeping off the west coast of Norway refused to cease his resistance when ordered to surrender his ship to the Nazi's by his government.

After refusing to obey the Norwegian edict to surrender Capt. Hauge was told to "get out of the country, then."

He took some German prisoners, landed them at the Shetland Islands and started cooperating with the British. Later, given permission to return to his trawler he decided to sail for Norway again "to join the battle" but learned from the radio when two days out that all hope for Norway had been abandoned. He then set his course "blind" for the United States.

FROM ME TO YOU

By MESEEALL

May we present at this time the theme song of the Associated Willkie-for-President Clubs of New Jersey . . . there will probably be others in the weeks to come.

Heigh-ho, heigh-ho,
It's back to work we go;
With Wendell Willkie leading us
The jobs will grow.
Heigh-ho, heigh-ho—heigh-ho,
We've all been feeling low,
But Willkie's hand will save the land,
Heigh-ho, heigh-ho.

Heigh-ho, heigh-ho,
It's back to work we go;
With Willkie's plan the New Deal sham
Will have to go.
Heigh-ho, heigh-ho,
The facts we want to know;
Wyn has no fear, he'll make things clear,
Heigh-ho, heigh-ho.

Heigh-ho, heigh-ho,
It's back to work we go;
With confidence restored again
Defense will grow.
Heigh-ho, heigh-ho—heigh-ho,
We've all been worried so,
But Willkie's fight will us unite,
Heigh-ho, heigh-ho.

Heigh-ho, heigh-ho
It's back to work we go;
The people's voice expressed their choice,
The votes will show.
Heigh-ho, heigh-ho—heigh-ho,
We want the world to know
That Wendell Willkie is the man
We want, heigh-ho!

Stock Market Trading Dull

Short Session Fails To Maintain Gains Registered On Friday

By LESLIE GOULD
International News Service
Financial Writer

NEW YORK, June 29.—The stock market drifted irregularly lower in extremely dull trading today, following its runup yesterday on the presidential nomination of Wendell Willkie. Price changes in most cases were narrow and several leaders held modest gains to the finish.

Turnover slipped under 200,000 shares, smallest total since July 8, 1939.

Principal steel shares, including Bethlehem and U. S. Steel, were behind minus signs throughout the two-hour session.

A few stocks gave up a point or more, as Eastman Kodak, American Can, Continenta Can, Douglas Aircraft and Allied Chemical. American Telephone, meanwhile, advanced a point.

Most coppers displayed a firm tone, except for Kennecott. Utilities turned mixed under profit-taking after yesterday's brisk rally. Rails held around last night's closing levels. Motors were barely changed, although General Motors and Chrysler both were up fractions at the start.

JAPANESE INVIGORATE THEIR PUSH INTO CHINA

Japanese military forces who have been fighting two years in their attempt to break the resistance of the Chinese armies headed by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek are intensifying their drive to gain their much-wanted control of rich Chinese territories. According to Japanese caption accompanying this photo, the scene is in the Hepei province as Japanese forces cross the Han-Shei.

UNITED STATES STRENGTHENS CANAL ZONE DEFENSES

Sudden moves, shrouded in a deep veil of official secrecy, have been made by United States defense forces to strengthen the defenses of the Panama canal, the nation's vital link between the Pacific and Atlantic oceans. Both entrances to the waterway have been mined and heavy coast artillery moved from the Pacific to the Atlantic end of the canal, but military officials have insisted that the moves have been only an "emergency rehearsal." Whether the defense moves at the canal have any connection with the sudden disappearance of the battle fleet from Hawaiian waters has not been revealed. The above picture is an air view of the vital Gatun locks and a section of the canal as a squadron of navy fighting planes flies over. The map inset shows the canal zone.

Marriage License Applications Drop Sharply This Month

Only About Third Of Normal Number Of Licenses Sought Here, Figures Show

Although there was quite a pickup in marriage license applications today, when six were recorded at the Prothonotary's office, the number of applications sought this month was about one-third the normal number for June.

In June of last year, 143 licenses were issued, while during the past month, 51 have made application.

The sharp decline is due to the new Pennsylvania marriage laws, which require that the applicant must prove by a physician's certificate that he is free of certain diseases before a license can be granted. Several of those applied for, have never been completed, Prothonotary John A. Edgar stated, although this is not out of the ordinary.

The number issued for the two months of May and June this year was seventy-one less than in May and June of 1939. Last year 271 applications were noted during the two months, while this year the number was an even 200.

Bishop Hayes Urges Defense; Should Stay Out

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, June 29.—The United States should stay out of the European war and prepare to the limit to defend itself against a world "gone mad," Bishop L. Hayes, rector of the North American College at Rome said here today.

"My sentiment is this: That we ought not to get into this mess; but that we ought to prepare ourselves defensively to the very limit of our powers," he said. "The world is mad; and we should be prepared to protect ourselves against madmen of any national or racial group."

The bishop, a native Pittsburgher, arrived in Boston this week from Genoa on the U. S. export liner Exchorda.

G. O. P. Nominee On Yacht Trip

Leaves Philadelphia On Leisurely Week-End Cruise With Family

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, June 29.—With a minimum of clamor and fanfare, Wendell Willkie, Republican Presidential standard bearer for next fall's election, left Philadelphia today for a quiet, leisurely week-end cruise to his home in New York.

Willkie, accompanied by his wife and son, sailed from this Delaware river port at 12:15 p. m., aboard the yacht of Roy Howard, newspaper publisher, whose guest he is.

Other members of the party included Mrs. Howard and Russell Davenport of New York, who resigned his post as a magazine editor a few weeks ago to assist in the Willkie campaign.

Scarcely a half dozen newspapermen and photographers were at the pier to see the yacht, Jamaory, pull into the river and head for Delaware Bay and the Atlantic ocean.

It was expected that the yacht would reach New York either late tomorrow night or early Monday.

Just before sailing Wilkie told newspaper reporters that he thought there would be "a few days delay" before selection of a chairman of the Republican national committee.

State Leader In Mushroom Growing

Eastern Pennsylvania Raises Huge Crop Of Mushrooms Annually

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, June 29—Pennsylvania is the undisputed mushroom growing center for the entire nation, producing approximately 20,000,000 pounds of mushrooms in a comparatively small area in southeastern Chester county.

Perhaps the most important reason for the huge mushroom concentration in this locality is the region's proximity to the metropolitan centers of New York, Philadelphia and Washington, all within a radius of 100 miles.

In recent years the rise in popularity of the fresh mushroom business has been matched by the mushroom canning industry, with twice as many canneries in the state than there were in 1930.

Edison Declares Willkie Best Man G. O. P. Could Pick

(International News Service)

CAMDEN, N. J., June 29.—Former Secretary of the Navy Charles A. Edison today expressed belief Wendell Willkie was "undoubtedly the best man" the Republicans could have picked out, and "will make a strong Presidential candidate".

Edison, who resigned his naval post to run as Democratic candidate for governor of New Jersey, spoke at dedication of a new Camden high school.

Asked if he thought Willkie would be a "strong opponent" for President Roosevelt, Edison commented: "I would rather see two good, strong candidates than one strong one and one weak one. Then the country would be certain of having a good leader."

Time Out for the Oath of Allegiance

WPA workers Daniel P. Sullivan, Ernest Verrier, Albert Lindsey and Frank Oselo take time out from work on a new Boston subway to swear allegiance to the United States. George C. Lawlor, head timekeeper, reads the oath. The workers signed affidavits declaring their citizenship and denying any affiliation with the Communist party or the German-American Bund, members of which are being dropped from WPA payrolls. Workers found to have falsely denied membership face prison terms.

PLANT VEGETABLES FOR GOOD FALL GARDEN CROP

In a general sense July 1 to 15 separate the spring garden from the fall garden.

Early plantings of spinach, leaf or head lettuce, radishes, green onions, and peas are the first vegetables used, followed closely by early beets, cabbage, carrots, and beans. This harvest results in a part of the garden being made vacant by July.

In the vacant space many vegetables may be planted for fall maturity, canning, and storing.

Sweet corn may be planted June 15 in northern Pennsylvania and July 1 in southern Pennsylvania, provided early and second early varieties are used. If early plantings of cucumbers failed, try again with seeding as late as June 20 to July 1.

Bush snap beans may be planted until July 15 to 20. They are best for canning if picked while tender, before the seed bulges the pods.

Chinese cabbage is sown about the middle of July. Chihli is the preferred variety. Do not transplant but thin the plants to eight inches in the row.

Celery for fall and winter may be set out as late as the middle of July. Earlier setting, however, will produce larger stalks in the longer growing period. Fordhook, Emperor, and Houser are good varieties.

Beets and carrots for canning or storing may be seeded during July. They will be tender and not overgrown.

Endive and Dwarf Scotch kale do best when sown the middle of July and the plants thinned to eight inches apart in the row.

Yellow Globe and White Globe turnips have time to grow to a good size if sown the last of July.

Leaf lettuce, such as Grand Rapids and Black Seed Simpson, and spinach such as Princess Juliana and Long Standing Bloomsdale, may be seeded from August 1 to 20.

These crops need thinning several times until the plants stand 6 to 8 inches apart for best plant development. Use the thinnings for food.

RYEGRASS PRODUCES A GOOD COVER CROP

General farmers and vegetable growers who tried sowing ryegrass last summer and fall at the suggestion of the agricultural extension service are pleased with the results.

When sown at the last normal cultivation of such crops as corn most plantings made good stands. Growth was not large until cool, moist weather but the ground was well covered by winter.

Little winter killing was reported by farmers. Growth started again early in the spring but top growth never became large enough to be objectionable. When plowed the root growth was so large and fibrous the the soil turned over like old sod. Much soil and fertility loss was prevented and the organic matter added goes a long way to improve soil condition and future crop yields.

With ryegrass seed priced reasonably the cost of 20 pounds of seed per acre was low compared with the benefits secured. In one trucking section alone 16,000 pounds of ryegrass seed was sown last summer Ryegrass promises to fill an important need and place, not only on truck farms but wherever corn stubble or other land usually has been left bear over winter.

GRASSLAND CONFERENCE SET FOR STATE COLLEGE

A regional grassland conference for the northeastern states is scheduled at the Pennsylvania State college for the afternoon and evening of July 10 and the morning of July 11. It will be followed by a meeting of the Northeastern Section of the American Society of Agronomy which will close the morning of July 12.

Staff members of agricultural college and experiment stations in Conneticut, Massachusetts, Vermont, New York, Pennsylvania and Deleware, representatives of the United States Department of Agriculture, cooperatives, fertilizer interests, and financial institutions will take part in the program. Topics on the program will be included under the general subjects of perspective, adjustments in farm practices as affected by grassland agriculture, and the educational objectives of a grassland agriculture.

The agronomy program will include inspection of the grass and legume nursery of the Regional Laboratory for Pasture Research and the fine turf and forage crop experiments of the college the afternoon of July 11. That evening there will be a dinner and business meeting of the section. Interest the following morning will be directed toward inspection of college agronomic research, including the Jordan soil fertility plots, phosphate experiments, nitrogen balance, studies, potato rotations, oats breeding nursery, and soil conservation plots.

GARDEN IDEAL FOR LIVE AT HOME HEALTH PLAN

The more food any family can raise and preserve at home, the better chances that family has of getting a good diet, believes Miss Julia Markle, home economics extension representative of Lawrence county.

Recent government research has shown that rural families raising at least part of their food are living better and cheaper.

One of the most valuable assets to the rural family is an adequate garden and fruit orchard, Miss Markle points out.

Lawrence county rural families do have gardens, and this year every woman may be able to supply her family with two vegetables besides potatoes daily. Besides, all families need two servings of fruit daily.

In order to take care of the non-growing months, remember to "budget your canning and can your budget". It has been said that a budget is a plan where you worry about your family's expenses or health before instead of afterwards.

A good canning budget will take care of your family's needs for seven months. Here it is, the amount of vegetables needed to can for one person for seven months; 7½ quarts of greens, 15 quarts of tomatoes, and 7½ quarts of other vegetables. These should include peas, corn, yellow snap beans, beets, carrots, etc. Multiply this number by the number in the family, and there you have your budget requirement.

For fruits, can 30 quarts for seven months for one person Miss Markle says.

Detailed information on canning fruits and vegetables is given in "Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables", and you may obtain a copy free from the Agricultural Extension Office, 206 Post Office Building, New Castle.

The past week has been a strenuous one for Judge W. Walter Braham. Judge Braham has conducted the entire week of court singlehanded, his colleague, Judge Thomas W. Dickey having been in attendance at the Republican National Convention at Philadelphia.

Monday will be Return Day with the court and motions will be presented for the order of the court. There will also be a sheriff's sale at 10 o'clock, and the argument list will be taken up.

Members of Sheriff M. M. Ingham's family were puzzled by the sound of chirping, which seemed to come from the chimney in the kitchen and which was noticed for several days. Finally convinced that it must be a bird, they investigated and after a great deal of trouble discovered the sounds were coming from a young robin, which had apparently tried its wings, too soon, and toppled down into the chimney. Outside of being covered with soot, the bird seemed little the worse for its experience.

DAILY DOZEN

(From the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania)

What have varicose veins to do with hydrostatics?

Take the first 2,000,000 men examined for the World war.

It was found that 3,423 suffered from varicose veins.

Those men all had one physical trait in common.

They averaged 2½ inches taller than the average recruit.

Did hydrostatic pressure cause varicose veins in them?

Many medical writers believe this to be a fact.

Added height pressure strains the lower blood vessels.

Hydrostatic pressure also works in short, overweight persons.

Varicose veins appear as swollen, winding tubing along the legs.

Different treatments are given in different cases.

Each individual case must be studied for correct care.

Protruding ears are comical on clowns, not on normal persons.

Outstanding ears are malformations born with the individual.

This protruding deformity does not affect the hearing.

But many sensitive people are made miserable by it.

They have a feeling of inferiority and inadequacy.

The entire mental attitude frequently becomes affected.

Especially those in public life suffer through protruding ears.

Promising careers have been curtailed by such deformity.

Plastic surgery is the answer to this problem.

Excellent corrective results are being obtained.

Recognized plastic surgeons have brightened countless lives.

Protruding ears may be made to lie flat against the head.
